Special advantage

- Stainless steel cover
- Aluminium joists

Also available with Ortmann capillary irrigation

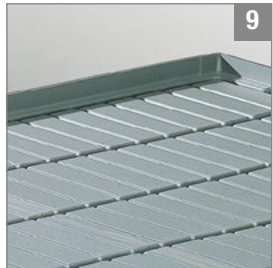

The Ortmann capillary irrigation system makes it unnecessary to water the plants every day and ensures a reliable supply of water nevertheless:
Wicks suck in the water out of a water tank integrated into the table and dispenses it to the plants by way of a special mat and protective foil on which they are standing – in the right quantity and entirely without wiring, hoses and controls.
The quantity of water in the tank can be checked by means of a water-level indicator in the table and it can be replenished via a filler neck. Excess rainwater can flow off through the overflow.

The special advantage of semi-automatic capillary irrigation:
No need for water pipes and connections!
